Our Ticket

We remind our friends of the necessity of sustaining our ticket entire. There must be no scratching. Every such act would be a vote for secesh. Stand up to the cause, good friends. Honesty, steadfastness, discipline will be as effectual in scattering secesh in Oregon, as the discipline of McClellan's army has been in scattering Jeff Davis' secesh in Virginia. Stand up to the holy cause of the Union without flinching!

A Good Appointment.—By the steamer Brother Jonathan we learn that Major Benj Alvord, Paymaster U S Army, and who for the last seven years has been stationed at Fort Vancouver, has been nominated by the President, and confirmed by the Senate, as Brigadier General of Volunteers. This is a good appointment—and the only complaint we have to make in the case is, that the appointment was not made at an earlier day. Major Alvord has a large circle of friends on this coast, who, while they may regret to part with him, will have every confidence that he will proceed to another field where he will do credit to himself and the country.

The appointment of Major Alvord as Brigadier General adds to the list of distinguished appointments in the army who have served on the Pacific coast. These appointments are Major Generals—George B McClellan, H W Halleck, J C Fremont; Brigadier Generals—E D Keyes, I I Stevens, E O C Ord, C C Augur, W T Sherman, C P Stone, Don Carlos Buell, F W Lander, Geo Wright, Silas Casey, Geo W Thomas, J F Reynolds, J G Parke, Benj Alvord.

That Secesh Convention.—An effort has been made by a few of the unterrified to raise a little fuss and fury because we were pleased to call the so called democratic convention of Saturday a secesh convention. Now, while we do not intend to wound the feelings or misrepresent the true character of any gentleman who may not think and act as we do, still it must be recollected that we have not or cannot recognize any party organization other than the straight-out Union party, therefore, any other party organization, be it called what may, is, to say the least, to be regarded as suspicious. We know that there are many true and loyal citizens who still reverence and respect their old party principles and prejudices, but we maintain that at this time, all party feeling, party preferences and party aims should be buried, and all who believe in maintaining the government and constitution in this hour of peril and greatest need should join hands together and demonstrate their devotion in a clear and unmistakable manner. With reference to the accusation of misrepresentation of what was said and done upon the occasion, we have only to say that we obtained our information from what we deemed a reliable source, and still feel confident that we gave a fairer statement of that transaction than has usually been done by our opponents in similar cases. "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone."

We publish herewith the following note from Dr. Loryea, which will doubtless set him right before the public, if he has been wronged.

Portland, May 26, 1862

Editor Oregonian:

In your report of my remarks before the "Democratic County Convention," you do me an injustice in giving only a portion of what I said. I stated that I was one of those who never was in favor of mixing politics in county offices, that all I asked for was honest and capable men; that owing to politics many offices were filled by incapable and dishonest men, that it was immaterial to me whether a county clerk was a republican, whig or democrat, if he possessed the necessary abilities and performed the duties of his office faithfully. But as a majority of the democrats of the county were in favor of making nominations, then I would insist that they should only make nominations from their ranks, that the ticket should be called democratic, and if it failed, it should die democratic; that I did not see the necessity of making nominations for all the county offices; that there were good men on the two tickets in the field, and I would like to vote for some of them regardless of their political opinions, and that the convention should give us an opportunity of doing so, and not nominate persons to oppose them, for democrats who wished to keep up their record would have to stand by the regular nominees; that though I was not one of those, there were many who felt that way, and would thus be prevented from voting for those good men.

By publishing this you will oblige

Yours resp'y, A. M. Loryea

The Battle of Pittsburg Landing

[illegible]

The great battle of Pittsburg will stand forth in bold relief upon the page of future history as one of the most bloody of the century, and by far the greatest our young Republic has ever known. At so early a day no complete, comprehensive and succinct account of that terrible battle can be given. The smoke of the strife has not yet rolled away; the country's wounds are yet bleeding; the groans of the dying yet pierce the sulphurous atmosphere. All that can be furnished are a few general statements and particular instances that marked the struggle of our patriotic army with a cunning and a skillful foe. A sterner battle than was waged at Pittsburg during Sunday and Monday, the 6th and 7th of April, few persons of this generation are likely to witness. The enemy fought like heroes, for they had been truly told, and they justly believed, that on the issue hung the fate of the Confederacy and the fortune of the South. They have lost again. Even desperation did not nerve them sufficiently, and the heaviest blow they have yet received has fallen upon their devoted heads.

COMMENCEMENT OF THE BATTLE

The Union forces on the clear pleasant balmy Saturday night, when they sought their tents to rest, had little thought the quiet of the beautiful Sabbath would be marred by the roar of cannon, the rattle of musketry, the hoarse battle cry, the clash of resounding arms. They were taken at disadvantage, but soon rallied and waged the fierce battle as if they had been looking for its coming at the very hour. It was notorious among the enemy that Gen Buell was marching rapidly to join his force with that of Gen Grant. He had been anxiously expected for several days, and to drive back and inflict a heavy and fatal blow upon Grant before his allies could come to his assistance was the best policy, if not a military necessity. The rebels numbered over 120,000 of their very choicest troops—Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas had sent their best soldiers to fight the decisive battle, and 162 regiments had gone forth from the South to annihilate the "barbarous Yankees" and establish for secession a prestige and glory that future time should not destroy or dim.

DESPERATE DETERMINATION OF THE SOUTH

No one who has not traveled recently in the Slave States can have any idea of how the South has moved heaven and earth to render a great victory on the Tennessee absolutely certain. The South contributed her last weapon and her last man to the purpose.—Every disloyal community had been drafted. No person capable of bearing arms was permitted to remain at home. Old and young alike shouldered their musket or rifle or shotgun, and departed for the scene of action. The most inflammatory appeals were made. When appeals failed, threats were made, and when threats were insufficient, violence was employed. Every Southern woman exercised her influence in the cause of the rebellion, bade her husband, brother, father, lover, friend, to make another struggle for his fireside and country, and victory would reward his efforts. The power of the North would be broken, the foreign hirelings of the tyrant Lincoln would be expelled forever from the sacred soil, and future generations would rise and call him blessed who flew to his country's succor in the hour of her extreme need.

The best of Southern generals were summoned from every quarter to conduct the great battle, to lend their counsels and employ their strong arms in the service of Secession, and make a last and desperate effort for the independence of the Confederacy.—Manassas was evacuated that the best soldiers on the Potomac might contribute to the army on the Tennessee. Pensacola was abandoned that the experienced artillerists of the South might depart for Corinth. Island No. 10 was weakened that the regiments there assembled might give their combined strength to the forlorn hope. A mighty army had taken its last stand on the shores of a river which was to be made immortal by the overthrow of the North and the triumphant success of the South. Beauregard, and Johnston and Polk and Bragg, and Jackson and Breckinridge had united their counsels and taken great oaths to do or die in the cause of Slavery, and for the extinction of Freedom in the model Republic.

When the battle was forced upon us on Sunday the enemy very far outnumbered us, and were confident of success. They had been assured they could not be defeated.—They had confidence in their leaders, and they had sworn, as Hannibal had sworn in his early youth, to conquer or to die—a rhetorical phrase very popular in the South, and most frequently employed when death seems at the greatest distance.

CAUSE OF THE EARLY ACTION

The engagement was brought on by a body of Union infantry who were ordered to capture a troop of some 300 rebel cavalry, who had for several days greatly annoyed and harassed our army. The cavalry was supposed to be at a certain point beyond our lines, and the infantry marched out expecting to surprise them, but were surprised, as was Gen Grant's entire command, who had no idea of a general engagement. Beauregard had had for two weeks, it is said, a number of spies in our camp, and was as fully informed of our plans, opinions and expectations as if he had been the confidential friend and adviser of the commander-in-chief. He had employed the cavalry as a decoy, and was aware our army was entirely unprepared for an engagement. In that condition, at that most critical and unfortunate hour, the great body of the Confederate army had advanced within range, and suddenly opened a terrible fire of musketry upon Gen Prentiss' division, throwing the left wing into great confusion, at the same time pouring into our encampment a perfect storm of canister, grape and shell, causing terrible destruction.

THE FIRST DAY'S FIGHTING

For some minutes much disorder prevailed, and the officers feared at first that a panic would seize the soldiers, but the coolness and bravery of the principal commanders prevented such a disaster. A line of battle was speedily formed, and a shower of shot and the deafening roar of the rebel artillery [illegible] and a stout resistance made. At this juncture the fire of the rebels for a few moments diminished, but was soon re-opened as fiercely as ever upon the left and centre of Gen Sherman's division, which were driven back with great loss, exposing our extreme left, under Gen McClernand, to its destructive sweep. After ten minutes, our whole army was formed in line, and our brave soldiers, extending three miles, began to return the fire of the foe with steady and continuous volleys of musketry, sending many a rebel who had expected another Manassas to his eternal rest.

During a period of four hours the deadly strife continued, the enemy displaying a degree of obstinate courage they had never before shown, and fighting with a desperate determination that compelled our forces to recede gradually before them. The generalship on the part of the Confederates was consummate. Their every movement was deserving, from a military point of view, of the highest admiration. The most unexpected movements were made. When we attacked a certain point, we met with resistance from a new quarter; when we went to the right we were attacked from the left; when we advanced to the centre a deadly fire was opened on us from the right, and so we were constantly deceived by the skill and strategy of our foes. Constant efforts were made to flank our regiments, and in many instances the rebels narrowly escaped success, so much so was this the case that we were again and again put upon the defensive, when the offensive was the need of the hour.

By this time the enemy had occupied a large portion of the ground on which we had been encamped when the action began, and we were still falling back before the Confederates, who seemed to be fighting with more and more determination, and who were doubtless cheered and encouraged by their early success. The Union centre gave unmistakable symptoms of giving way, for it was sorely pressed, and the fortunes of the day appeared to be against us, when Gen Hurlbut's division was ordered to its support, and well and bravely was it supported.

A TERRIBLE STRUGGLE

Hotter and hotter grew the contest, fiercer and fiercer the struggle. Each man fought as if success or defeat depended on his own right arm, and charge after charge was made by the rebels to regain the ground we had lost. They stood firm as a rock, and though our artillery often swept down their ranks, and left fearful gaps in their columns, they manifested no trepidation, nor did they waver for a moment. The living supplied the place of the dead. The musket that had fallen from a lifeless hand was seized at once, and the horrid strife swept on as before.—The force of the enemy appeared increasing, and where the greatest havoc was made, there the strongest opposition was shown.—Hand to hand contests were innumerable. Every struggle was for life. Quarter was asked on neither side, and the ground drank up the blood of hundreds of brave fellows every hour. Men lost their semblance of humanity, and the spirit of the demon shone in their faces. There was but one desire, and that was to destroy. There was little shouting. The warriors were too much in earnest. They set their teeth firm, and strained their every nerve to its utmost tension. Death lost all its terrors, and men seemed to feast upon the sight of blood. The light of the sun was obscured by the clouds of sulphurous smoke, and the ground became moist and slippery with human gore. The atmosphere trembled with the shock of the armies, and the earth shook with the tramp of the thousands and ten thousands of warring foes.

INTENSITY OF THE EXCITEMENT

The balance of victory ever varied. It now inclined to this side and now to that. Here the Unionists gained an advantage, there the Confederates. A success was followed by a defeat, success by repulse. At this point we drove the enemy back, but were driven back in return. Success was always shifting, but never settled. Hope and fear, joy and sorrow, seized the soul by turns, and every hour held a month of emotions. All consciousness of time ceased, all thought of the future, all recollection of the past. Everything was absorbed in the sanguinary present, and external nature assumed the hue of blood. Men glared at each other as wild beasts, and when a shell burst with fatal effect among a crowd of the advancing foe, and arms, legs, and heads were torn off, a grim smile of pleasure lighted up the smoke-begrimed faces of the transformed beings who witnessed the catastrophe. Soldiers were wounded and knew it not, so intense was their excitement, and often a mortal hurt was announced to the victim only by the cessation of vitality. Men with knotted brows and flushed cheeks fought madly over ridges, along ravines and up steep ascents, with blood and perspiration streaming down their faces. Men with shattered fingers changed their muskets to the left hands, and still fired their pieces as best they could. Everywhere was made excitement, everywhere was uproar. Commanders galloped wildly to the front of their regiments, and cheered them on, using their sabres on each and every foe, and urging their [illegible] whenever the troops were falling back, careless of their own lives as if they had a million souls to spare. Captains, majors, colonels and generals fought like common soldiers, and it was not uncommon to see a field officer using a musket or charging with his revolver upon the advancing foe.

There was no pause in the battle. The din of the strife was ever heard. The artillery bellowed and thundered, and the dreadful echoes went weeping down the river, and the plains were filled with the dying and the dead. The sound was deafening—the tumult indescribable. No life was worth a farthing, for he who lifted his musket this moment [illegible] the next a stiffened corpse. Yonder a fresh regiment rushed bravely forward, and ere they had gone twenty yards in charge [illegible] grape sent the foremost and bleeding to the earth. Whole heaps of corpses lay upon the murmuring ground, and fixed eyes stared at the surrounding strife with the awful stare of death. Will no kind [illegible] dreadful vision? But who cared for it? Death was not to be thought of, but to be met with indifference [illegible] Death was [illegible] and [illegible] plant on every foot of soil.

[illegible]

During Sunday afternoon [illegible] of the Union regiments, after fighting [illegible] two hours, were [illegible] by a number of shells, which burst [illegible] upon all them, and at the same moment a rebel battery opened upon them at the distance of half a mile with [illegible]. They could not [illegible] turned and fled, and several of their officers endeavored in vain to rally them. They were utterly panic stricken at first, and they would have run if the infernal pit had opened before them, hurrying [illegible]. No appeal, no censure [illegible] them. Many threw away their arms [illegible] school boy who thinks [illegible] a ghost in the village church yard. A number of flying soldiers recovered their [illegible] and their pride, and returned to their posts, fighting more bravely than before to wipe out the stain, but the greater portion ran beyond the reach of the human voice, crossing the river and going to Savannah.

ARRIVAL OF GENERAL BUELL

As the sun was sinking toward the west Gen Buell's column, so anxiously expected, so needful in the great emergency, appeared on the opposite side of the river, and the enemy redoubled their efforts to insure our defeat, knowing that on the morrow our numbers would nearly equal their own, and that they must put the last remnant of strength into the contest. They did so. They summoned a large portion of their reserve, and fell with unexampled fury upon our ranks, shouting like madmen, and striving in every possible way to extend the panic with which the unfortunate twelve regiments had been seized. Every one of their cannon seemed in play, every musket performing its office. They told their troops the condition of affairs, that this was the golden opportunity, that all depended upon winning a victory before darkness should compel a suspension of hostilities. The rebels swept like an avalanche upon the loyal troops, and the shock had its effect. Our soldiers wavered, for they were nearly exhausted with the long, hard fight, and the enemy's fresh forces gave them the advantage.

Here was a crisis, and Gen Grant rode along the whole line amid a storm of balls, and encouraged the men, and assured them that if they would hold out until next morning Buell with his thousands would have crossed the river. His brief remarks added courage to many a faint heart, and strength to many a tired arm, and our ranks fought with a desperate and invincible spirit. Still, they could hardly cope with the overpowering force of the rebels until Col Webster, chief of Gen Grant's staff, planted several batteries, and brought them to bear directly on the enemy's right, and about the same time the gunboats Lexington and Tyler, which were near the contending armies, to the bank, opened a heavy fire upon the advancing rebels. The [illegible] endeavored to endure this terrible double fire, but their columns had not the fortitude to stand, and were mowed down by hundreds. Beauregard and Johnston attempted to hold them to their position, and they exposed themselves most recklessly to prevent them from falling back, but to no purpose. Every discharge of the batteries, every roar of death from the gunboats, sent the rebel regiments reeling to the grave, and in less than half an hour they moved backward, leaving us in possession of all the ground we had occupied in the morning. In this part of the action, Gen Albert Sydney Johnston fell, and Beauregard was seriously wounded in the left arm. Johnston has since died, I am assured by Capt Jackson, who says he saw his corpse prepared for removal to his friends in Virginia.

THE SECOND DAY'S FIGHTING—DEFEAT OF THE REBELS.

During the night Gen Nelson's division of Buell's army reached the battle field, and early in the morning the engagement was renewed, Nelson occupying the left and Gen Wallace the right. Nelson and Wallace opened on the enemy with a heavy fire, and caused them to fall back. For several hours the victory seemed to be ours; but about half-past ten o'clock the rebels, who must have been reinforced, made a series of gallant charges, and caused our troops to retire for a quarter of a mile, pouring most fearful volleys of musketry into our ranks. Again the prospect looked dark, and thousands of hearts felt alarmed, not for themselves, but for the fortunes of the great battle on which so much depended—perhaps the salvation of the Republic and the happiness of unborn generations.

Gen Buell had crossed the river below the point where Nelson had, and at this juncture came up with fresh troops, and flanked the enemy and captured a number of pieces of artillery. The rebels here made a terrible charge to recover their loss, but they were unsuccessful. They wavered and were driven back—rallied, and made a final attempt, but were repulsed, Buell's forces meeting and engaging them in a splendid manner.

Our army saw their advantage and followed it up in magnificent style, and from that hour the rebels seemed to have lost faith in themselves. They could not be rallied, though their commanders bellowed themselves hoarse. They could not keep their ground, and they slowly retired with their faces still to the Unionists, and fighting, though somewhat languidly. Their hope and energy appeared to diminish steadily, and they soon gave evidence of demoralization, and before six o'clock retreated with celerity, pursued towards Corinth by 6,000 of our cavalry.

PROBABLE LOSSES ON BOTH SIDES.

The loss on both sides has been dreadful—by far the greatest ever experienced on this continent. No accuracy can be reached in this particular, but I have reason to believe that our list of killed and wounded will be nearly 8,000, and that of the enemy more than twice that number, owing in part to the superiority of our arms and the better skill of our artillerists. The gunboats swelled their mortality fearfully, and I am informed that [illegible] three or four thousand were placed hors du combat by the fire of the Tyler and Lexington.

During the first day as many as forty or fifty of our pieces of artillery were captured, but on the second they were all retaken, with fifty five cannon belonging to the rebels. Our loss of officers has been extraordinarily large, but still less, I think, than that of the rebels, who have suffered excessively. I shall not attempt to give a list of the killed or wounded at present, as many of the reports are doubtless erroneous, and no accuracy can be obtained for many days. Our victory was dearly purchased, and it is most fortunate that we were not defeated, as several mistakes were made that might have produced such a result but for a happy combination of circumstances. Our success seems to have been decided, but whether or not the enemy will at any early day risk battle again in [illegible] is a matter of conjecture. Beauregard will make a herculean effort to retrieve his fortunes, as will the other secession leaders, but it is very doubtful whether the privates can be rallied to a stand, as they are greatly demoralized, and have lost faith on account of their frequent defeats.

The rebels have taken an immense number of prisoners—not less than 4,000, I am informed—Gen Prentiss among the number. Two full regiments were captured by the flanking movement, and so cut off from the main army. The enemy hurried off their prisoners rapidly, giving us no opportunity to recover them. The Confederates who fell into our hands will probably number eight or nine hundred.—Correspondence N. Y. Tribune.

Caution to Voters.

Editor Oregonian:

Did the voters of Oregon fully appreciate the importance of their position at the coming election, and understand the designs of those who are opposing with such virulence the true and only Union ticket, there could be no doubt, in any sane mind, as to the result. Did treason dare to unmask its hideous form and proclaim in open day its treacherous purposes, its power for evil would be broken. If armed rebellion sought a foothold on the virgin soil of our young State, the great heart of the masses would be moved by the single impulse to crush the viper ere it reached the vitals of our liberty, and although traitors might remain among us, yet the withering scorn of a free people, of a Union loving people, (as we regard the citizens of Oregon) would rest upon them with a power that would "strike and sear the wretch who'd bring our land to shame." But, unfortunately, treason, which ever works in the dark and seeks its victims in disguise, has clothed its frightful features in the garb of loyalty. At first it simply threw over itself the veil of "opposition to the Administration." But the ringleaders soon discovered that the discerning eye of an awakened public could penetrate the veil and behold the inevitable signs of treason at the heart, and for awhile the whole band of Southern sympathizers set up the cry of "democracy." But this, too, fails it seems, when the people see interests of higher import than the mere preserving of party relations demand their earnest attention. The word "democracy," which, in its purity, possessed a charm for any freeman, had no power to allure a loyal people from their love of country, and they attached the name of Union to their sinking cause.

The disunion element of this county, it appears, has even gone further, and throwing off the "democratic," they have the outrageous hypocrisy to assume the name of Independent Union. This is all for the purpose of deceiving those who do not wish to act in any way with secessionists and beguile the unwary into the support of rebellion.

Let every man carefully examine these things for himself, and then the voice of our fair young State will be heard at the ballot-box in June speaking in unmistakable tones and declaring in favor of the Union. And to those who thus seek to mislead a confiding public what word of condemnation is too severe? Traitors, conceal your dark designs with the utmost care, lest public opinion, even before the election, shall place in the hands of every honest man a "scourge, to lash the scoundrels naked through the land." O, conspiracy, never "Unmask your monstrous visage, but chide it in smiles and affability; for if thou put thy native semblance on, not Erebus itself were dim enough to keep thee from prevention."

The Daily Oregonian.

CITY.

The MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

THE DAILY OREGONIAN may be had at the Franklin Book Store opposite the Post Office.

Large shipments of freights destined for the upper Columbia, continued to be sent by our merchants and traders. Front street for the distance of several blocks, and a part of Yamhill street, was crowded from early dawn until a late hour last evening, with heavily loaded drays and freight wagons, awaiting their turn to be discharged on board the Julia. It not unfrequently happens, as was the case this morning, a row ensues among the dray men when one undertakes to crowd in ahead of his time. Mr Vaughn was compelled to close the gate to day, as means of safety to the wharf.

The River—Up to 10 o'clock last night the Willamette at this point had risen eight inches in twenty four hours. The Upper Willamette raised twelve inches during Sunday night. Much fear is apprehended that the waters will inundate a large portion of our city during the next month.

We are indebted to Capt. Turnbull and W. H. Troupe, of steamer Vancouver for personal favors. We know of no officers of any steamer upon our waters that are more gentlemanly, courteous and obliging than these gentlemen.

Speaking—The Union candidates for the Legislature will address the citizens of Multnomah Precinct at their place of voting this morning at ten o'clock, and at Powell's Valley this afternoon at four o'clock.

The auction sale at A. D. Shelby's closed yesterday evening at about four o'clock, having disposed of the entire stock. The prices obtained were very fair.

We learn from Capt. Turnbull of steamer Vancouver, that the Columbia river is again rising rapidly at Vancouver.

Fresh Beef.—Proposals are published for fresh beef to be furnished the troops at Vancouver for one year from July 1st.

Still Defending the Rebels!—The Advertiser denounces the report of the Joint Committee of Congress on the barbarities of the rebels at Manassas. The creature of the Advertiser has the weakness to place his bare word against the report of a Congressional committee, composed of democrats and republicans—all Union men—based upon evidence furnished. Marvelous weakness in the Advertiser.

Difference of Opinion—The Advertiser's [illegible] expressed the opinion a few days since that there was more hope of the success of the rebels now than after the conquest of Sumter. [illegible] he does not concur with another high authority—the Charleston Courier. That paper admits the hopelessness of the rebel cause. It will be acknowledged that the Advertiser is faithfully up to the work of sustaining the rebels.

The rip-roaring, unterrified, invincible Democracy of Clarke county met in mass in Vancouver on Saturday last. A correspondent says that a big crowd, at least a dozen, was present, and the utmost good whisky prevailed. Arrangements were made for having another one on the 22d proximo.—Resolutions, no doubt heavy in their character, were adopted. Copies of which will be furnished somebody for publication.

Sensible of his Misery—We notice that Malone of the Union is about to enter the "[illegible]" from the tone of his leader of last issue. He wants $300, very modest request, but we have seen whole families in his fix before now, and expect to see quite a large addition to the number of those who want money after the election next Monday. $300 would be just about enough to pay your passage to Salmon. Wouldn't it, Pat?

The scarlet fever is reported to be raging among the children at Vancouver. Some four or five having died during the past few days, and several more are dangerously ill with this dreadful disease. We have not heard of any adult persons being attacked with the disease as yet.

Judge Page at the Dalles—The editorials of the Advertiser show the absence of Judge Page. We miss the reckless assertions—the downright lies—the brazen mendacity—and find now little else than twaddle.

Public Speaking.

The Union Candidates for the Legislature in this County, and the Union candidates for the different County offices, will address the people of Multnomah county at the following times and places:

Multnomah Precinct, Tuesday, May 27th at 10 A. M. at place of voting.

Powell's Valley, Tuesday May 27th at 4 P. M., at place of voting.

Sandy, Wednesday May 28th at 10 A. M., at place of voting.

Willamette, Thursday, May 29th at 10 A. M. at place of voting.

Sauvie's Island, Friday May 30th at 10 A. M., at place of voting.

The attention of the Ladies and Gentlemen is respectfully solicited to the New Styles of DRESS GOODS and CLOTHING just received by the steamer consisting of French Poplins, Brilliants, Challie, Delb[illegible], Grenadine, Rhines, Delaines, Ducals, French Hats, New Style Bonnets, and the Latest Styles of Paris Gr[illegible] de [illegible], together with a full assortment of Spring Sacks, Business Suits, Summer Raglans, French Cloth [illegible] Coats, Doeskin Pants, Light Silk Vests, and New Style Hats; all intended expressly for the present season. All the articles are now ready for sale, and can be seen at [illegible], opposite the Upper Wharf.

Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are sources of Pulmonary, Bronchial and Asthmatic Affections. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should at once be had to Brown's Bronchial Troches, or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off. Public Speakers and Singers will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice. See advertisement.

Agency Notice.—Mr L. P. FISHER is our only authorized Agent in San Francisco to receive advertisements and transact business for the Daily and Weekly OREGONIAN. Office—No 571, Washington street, nearly opposite Maguire's Opera House.

The Medical and Surgical Institute of DR L. J. CZAPKAY is already secured in a position which places it, as well as its proprietor, far above the assaults of envy and professional malice. In the [illegible] Prussia the highest prizes are [illegible] to [illegible] in this department of medical science, and they occupy, with others an equally lofty position in the profession. [illegible] is an illustrious example, a shining light among the philosophical stars of this age in Europe, and Dr. Czapkay has fully equalled him in this country, as a [illegible] of which the Philadelphia College of Medicine complimented him with a Diploma and the honorary ad eundem degree. [illegible] as his [illegible] Experience, although qualified [illegible] the University of Pesth and late Chief Surgeon to the Hungarian Revolutionary army [illegible] Dr. L. J. Czapkay has devoted his entire attention to the cure of chronic and private diseases, in which he has become a great expert, [illegible] that he is now regarded as the leader in this branch of his profession throughout the United States. [illegible] His portrait and biography are published as matter of interest to their readers in the most extensive journals. The Doctor's offices are at his Medical and Surgical Institute, on Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, opposite the buildings of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, San Francisco. We ask particular attention of our readers to the sworn certificates from [illegible] in another column of this paper. Persons at a distance wishing to lose time [illegible] ing, please enclose $10 in their letters and they will get immediate attention [illegible] their names. Address L. J. CZAPKAY, M. Dietz's Diamond Oil.

WE NOW OFFER TO THE PUBLIC in full confidence a new article of

KEROSENE OIL,

Which we warrant in every particular to be

Superior to any other Oil ever brought to the San Francisco market. It has been thoroughly tested in all the different Patent Coal Oil Burners and found to produce by one third than any other Oil in use.

Among the many advantages of this KEROSENE OIL over other oils:—First, that it is perfectly NON-EXPLOSIVE and can be used with perfect safety in all kinds of LAMPS. Second, it is free from all the unpleasant smells, and burns with a clear white brilliant flame. We certainly recommend it to the public and FAMILIES to give this oil a trial and be convinced that it will give a preference over all other Oils in economy as well as its superior burning qualities.

In order to protect ourselves against Counterfeits we have placed a brand on each can and case, which will be known as

DIETZ'S DIAMOND OIL.

It is now offered at wholesale and retail at 505 Front street,

Between Washington and Jacks[on] streets,
And at Branch Store, [illegible] street

FAMILY

SEWING MACHINES

ARE UNEQUALLED BY ANY FOR

BEAUTY AND SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION

AND

Efficiency in Working.

A GOOD SEWING MACHINE

SHOULD BE WELL MADE, simple in its construction and easily kept in order, should make a TIGHT LOCK STITCH, alike on both sides of the material, and should sew any and all materials that can be sewed.

It should be able to use cotton, thread or silk directly from the spool, and to sew from coarse to fine, and from thick to thin, with rapidity, and without changing the tension. It should also be able to make the tension greater or less on both the under and upper threads, and with uniformity, and should have a straight needle, curved ones being liable to break.

The needle should have perpendicular motion—this is absolutely necessary for heavy work.

It should be able to bind with a binder, hem with a hemmer, should stitch, fell, run and gather, and should be always ready to work.

It should be capable of using the same size thread on both sides of the work, and of using different colored thread or silk above or below, to correspond with any two colors of cloth to be united.

It should be able to make a long or short stitch, and to fasten off the seam and commence sewing tightly at the first stitch, and to run easily, and make but little noise.

It should have a wheel feed, as others are in constant contact with the work.

It should not be liable to get out of order, neither should it require a screw driver or wrench to set the needle.

It should not be liable to oil the operator's dress.

It should not form a ridge on the under side, nor ravel.

DR. L. J. CZAPKAY'S

Private Medical & Surgical Institute,

SACRAMENTO STREET, BELOW MONTGOMERY,
Opposite Pacific Mail Steamship Company's Office, San Francisco.

ESTABLISHED IN 1854 FOR THE PERMANENT cure of all Chronic and Private Diseases, and the SUPPRESSION OF QUACKERY. Attending and Resident Physician, L. J. CZAPKAY, M. D., Late in the Hungarian Revolutionary War, Chief Physician to the 20th Regiment of Honveds, Chief Surgeon to the Military Hospital of Pesth, Hungary, the late Lecturer on Diseases of the Urinary Organs and Diseases of Women and Children, and Honorary Member of the Philadelphia College of Medicine. ☞ Particular attention paid to the treatment of diseases peculiar to women and children.

OFFICE HOURS—From 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

☞ Communications strictly confidential. Permanent cure guaranteed, or no pay. Consultations by letter or otherwise FREE.

Address DR. L. J. CZAPKAY, San Francisco.

Of all diseases, the first great cause
Springs from neglect of Nature's laws.

To the Afflicted.

Suffer not when a cure is guaranteed in all stages of secret diseases—Self Abuse, Nervous Debility, Syphilis in all its stages, Strictures, Gleet, Gravel, Diabetes, diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Mercurial Rheumatism, Scrofula, Pains in the Bones and Ankles, diseases of the Lungs, Throat, Nose and Eyes, Ulcers upon the Body or Limbs, Cancers, Dropsy, Epileptic Fits, St. Vitus Dance—and all diseases arising from a derangement of the sexual organs—such as Nervous Trembling, Loss of Memory, Loss of Power, General Weakness, Dimness of Vision with peculiar spots appearing before the eyes, Loss of Sight, Wakefulness, Dyspepsia, Liver Disease, Eruptions upon the Face, Pains in the Back and Head, Female Irregularities—and all improper discharges of both sexes. It matters not from what cause the disease originated, however long standing, or obstinate the case, recovery is certain and in a shorter time than a permanent cure can be effected by any other treatment, even after the disease has baffled the skill of eminent physicians and resisted all their means of cure. The medicines prescribed are pleasant without odor, entirely vegetable, causing no sickness and free from mercury or [illegible]. During fifteen years of practice in Europe, the Atlantic States and California, I have rescued from the jaws of death many thousands, who in the last stages of the above mentioned diseases had been given up to die by their physicians, which warrants me in promising to the afflicted who may place themselves under my care a speedy and permanent cure. Private diseases are the greatest enemies to health, as they are the first cause of consumption, scrofula and many other diseases, and should be a terror to the human family. A permanent cure is scarcely ever effected—a majority of cases falling into the hands of incompetent persons, who not only fail to cure the disease but ruin the constitution, filling the system with mercury which with the disease, hastens the sufferer into a rapid consumption. But should the disease and the treatment not cause death speedily, and the victim marries, the disease is entailed upon the children who are born with feeble constitutions, and the current of life corrupted by a virus which betrays itself in scrofula, tetter, ulcers, eruptions and other affections of the skin, eyes, throat and lungs, entailing upon them a brief existence of suffering, and consigning them to an early grave.

Self abuse is another formidable enemy to health, for nothing else in the dread catalogue of human diseases causes so destructive a drain upon the system, drawing its thousands of victims through a few years of suffering down to an untimely grave. It destroys the nervous system, rapidly wastes away the energies of life, causes mental derangement, prevents the proper development of the system, disqualifies for marriage, society, business and all earthly happiness, and leaves the sufferer wrecked in body and mind, predisposed to consumption and a train of evils more to be dreaded than death itself. [illegible]

Irregularities and all diseases of males and females treated on principles established by fifteen years of practice, and sanctioned by thousands of the most remarkable cures. [illegible] Medicines with full directions sent to any part of the State or [illegible] and Washington Territory by patients [illegible] stating their symptoms by letter.

All business correspondence strictly confidential. Address DR. L. J. CZAPKAY, Medical Institute, Sacramento street, below Montgomery, opposite Pacific Mail Steamship Co.'s office, San Francisco.

Remarkable Instance of Medical Relief

Believing it my duty to publish the certificates of three of the sufferers who were in the pangs of disease, and having recovered their former health and [illegible] gratitude make known their cases and remedial agency, and their statement are authenticated by a Notary Public. The thousands [illegible] certificates [illegible] and we commend their perusal to the attention of all afflicted.

Dear Sir—The undersigned [illegible] acquainting the world [illegible] to be similarly [illegible] a permanent relief of their sufferings may be obtained [illegible] I express him my [illegible] for the [illegible] of his health [illegible] the [illegible] passion [illegible] in body and mind unable [illegible] duty imposed upon the [illegible] advice of many physicians [illegible] trifling, [illegible] weeks and a several [illegible] and to my nutriment [illegible] symptoms I became [illegible] alarming in the [illegible] being [illegible] of disease [illegible] the train and [illegible] regaining my health, strength and vigor [illegible] resort and [illegible] Dr. Czapkay, who after examining my case [illegible] pain and [illegible] cease in my [illegible] to all [illegible] fear and my [illegible] in the [illegible] weakness of my limbs, the [illegible] reaction of my whole [illegible] on the slightest alarm, excitement, the misanthropy and evil forebodings, the [illegible] and want of confidence in others, the incapability to study and want of resolution, the frightful exciting and at times pleasurable dreams at night followed by involuntary discharges, have all disappeared, and in fact in two months after having [illegible] the doctor, I felt as if inspired by a new life—that life which but a short time ago I contemplated to end by my own hand. With the view to guard the unfortunate from falling into the snares of incompetent quacks, I deem it my duty to offer this testimony to the merit and skill of Dr. Czapkay, and recommend him to all who may stand in need of medical advice, being assured by my own experience, that once under his care a radical and permanent cure will be effected.

B. F. FILLMORE.

State of California, County of San Francisco.
Subscribed and sworn to before me, this seventh day of April, A. D. 1856. Signed [L. S.] JOHN MIDDLETON, Notary Public.

MARYSVILLE, June 14, 1856.

DR. L. J. CZAPKAY, San Francisco—Sir: I have [illegible] last of your medicine and do not think I shall need any more as I feel very well, except that I have not yet got my strength yet but soon will with the appetite I have. It is just three weeks, you may recollect, since I came to your institute with my constitution as I thought, broken entirely, and never thought you would be able to cure me perfectly, but thought you might be able to do [illegible] to ease the pain in my back and head, and strengthen my nerves so that I would not get excited and tremble at everything. Now that you know what I expected, you [illegible] judge of my satisfaction at my complete recovery [illegible] symptoms and the removal of those sores and [illegible] my skin, and the ulcers from my throat, and the [illegible] page of those emissions, which you said were [illegible] cause of my sickness. I can hardly tell you which is the greatest, my joy or my surprise, for except not [illegible] got my strength, I feel as well as any man can feel. [illegible]

Enclosed I send you twenty dollars over your [illegible] think myself cheaply cured. If you think anybody will be benefited you may put this letter in the newspaper. I remain gratefully yours, THOMAS HAYNE.

Thankfulness is the Incentive to [illegible]

CERTIFICATE.—Prompted by an honest desire of my heart I wish to lay before the public a case which deserves commendation, not only as an act of scientific skill, but of humanity also. About two years ago, I suddenly, and from causes unknown to me, was seized with a fit of [illegible], which, owing to my inability to meet the expenses consequent upon a thorough medical treatment, and the [illegible] agement which I met with on attempting it, soon [illegible] such (I was then led to believe) as to defy the skill of any physician. I was frequently, while in pursuit of my [illegible], thrown down to the ground without the slightest [illegible], and although insensible to the agonies I yet [illegible] miseries of my life, and soon learned to look upon [illegible] would render assistance or shelter me from danger as enemies who sought to prolong the existence of my [illegible]. While in this state and having previous to my [illegible] tasted the sweets of life, I once more was induced to [illegible] seeking aid of a physician and by recommendation, called upon Dr. L. J. Czapkay. I told him of my circumstances and my inability to reward him for his services, [illegible] which however he at once undertook my case, and with the blessing of God, I was once more restored to perfect health. Unable to reward him for the boon which I enjoy at present and yet [illegible] my indebtedness, I [illegible] due to myself and all afflicted to make the case public, in order that those in need of medical advice may find a physician in whom every confidence can be placed.
